Frequently Asked Questions

Are Chinese companies making the most advanced batteries?

Companies in China like CATL were manufacturing products en-masse, but rarely did they make the most advanced products. Most advanced battery research was happening in national labs in the United States. But today, many of the world's most advanced batteries are being built by Chinese companies like CATL.

Who makes the best car batteries in China?

When CATL started making car batteries, another Chinese company, BYD, was considered the market leader. But, as it grew, CATL made its technical supremacy pay. At the time, BYD used lithium iron phosphate batteries, while CATL used a combination of nickel, manganese, and cobalt, or NMC. "NMC had longer ranges," says Xing.

Who is China's most prolific battery billionaire?

Zeng Yuqun is China's most prolific battery billionaire. His ascent has major implications for a world increasingly reliant on electric vehicles. The headquarters of battery giant CATL tower over the coastal Chinese city of Ningde. To the untrained eye, the building resembles a huge slide rising out of the urban sprawl.

What is China's battery industry?

Sparking the Revolution: The Early Days of China's Battery Industry The roots of China's battery industry can be traced back to the 1990s, with a primary focus on lead-acid batteries for traditional industries and consumer electronics.

Is China's battery industry a global juggernaut?

Today, China's battery industry stands as a global juggernaut. China's battery revolution is an awe-inspiring tale of technological advancement, economic growth, and environmental ambition. In 2023, Chinese companies produced over 325 gigawatt-hours (GWh) of lithium-ion batteries, a figure that dwarfs the combined output of all other countries.

Is China making EV batteries?

As of today, China manufactures over 75% of the world's batteries and 80% of the cells, powering everything from smartphones to electric vehicles (EVs). Imagine a world where electric vehicles (EVs) are the norm, renewable energy powers our homes, and portable electronics last for days on a single charge. This isn't just a dream.
